Calzonegate Friends / Enemies -- Pro/Con List

Disclaimer: Bias is everywhere. Even in this. I believe there is something to calzonegate, simply because I've researched this issue a lot more than most people have, and I know for certain that the media failed in its duty in the 1980s regarding this issue. That's why it's back with 10x the force and outrage it had then, we never dealt with our cultural 'shadow'. That said, I've made a table of which media supports and which denounce calzonegate. It's pretty obvious that most denounce it.

UPDATE: I'll be fixing various issues with this table. Sorry about that. It's inevitable if you look at the horrible markdown.

I think George said something about over 30M dollars per person as combined total with marrow (not even counting blood or plasma sales); so now it makes sense that they'd take out the organs and replace them with drugs. The organs are the thing with value, and the drugs are just worthless mass to make the weight look correct and fill up the space. lol. just kidding. But as a showerthought, it would seem that if you can handle organs in a just-in-time market (ie: North Haiti industrial park), then they greatly outmatch illegal drugs in terms of value, but then again drugs keep for at least 2 yrs

another thing I found out about is GHK-Cu, extremely expensive copper peptides extracted from human plasma used for stem cell and nerve growth proliferation, while being very effective on "reversing expression of genes involved in metastatic spreading of colon cancer"; also used in antiaging of skin and hair growth
